- Your motorhome's steering, suspension and braking systems are comprised of many different components, each of which must work correctly to ensure proper function of the system as a whole.
- That's why we recommend our Road Performance Assessment (RPA®). Developed by Henderson's Line-Up,
- The RPA is a systematic, diagnostic 15-mile road test that reveals steering and suspension problems over a variety of road surfaces.
- You'll ride alongside our technician as your coach drives over highways, curved and narrow roads, sharp turns, even bumps and ruts—they're all included in the RPA to re-produce the very symptoms that you've come to us to solve.

HendersonsLineup.com

- At the test's conclusion, we'll perform a detailed inspection of more than 50 points on your coach. These include your air ride suspension (if equipped), tire wear, steering gear, disc brake rotors and pads, shock absorbers, tie rods, idler arms, king pins, ball joints, bushings and much more. Plus:
- Observe while the technician performs the inspection
- Get your vehicle weighed at all four corners to determine proper weight distribution
- Receive a written diagnosis that pinpoints the vehicle's issues
- Our professional advice on how to rectify any problems—but you make the final decision
- Finally, when any repair work is completed, we'll test drive the vehicle one more time, then let you take the wheel to verify the effectiveness of our work.

1. The customer fills out some paper work to begin the RPA.

2. The technician completes a Pre-Inspection Form with the Customer.

3. The technician records the problems and complaints about the coach on an extensive RPA Checklist Form.

4. Listening to the Customer is very important in gathering information about the coach. The coach owner has valuable insights and information to share.

5. The Technician drives the motorhome on a 15 mile road test to duplicate any symptoms and evaluate the coach.

6. Highway driving is one road condition used to evaluate the coach.

7. The technician drives the motorhome on a winding road to evaluate the coach.

8. Customer & Technician walk all four corners to check

9. The technician inspects the underside of the motorhome to check for
